

FACULTY OF LAW AND CRIMINOLOGY

A leading school in the heart of Europe.

Modernity steeped in tradition.

We are proud to present the Ghent Faculty of Law and Criminology, a vibrant international centre of academic excellence, serving all fields of law and the criminological sciences. Firmly rooted in Europe's heartland, we stand for education and research that is both pluralistic and socially engaged, the embodiment of Ghent University's motto: 'dare to think'.

This brochure provides a brief overview of a faculty which, for over two centuries, has led the way academically, serving a world that is constantly in flux. Our school is diverse and cosmopolitan, a biotope of academic innovation in the midst of one of Europe's most enchanting historic cities. You are warmly invited to explore our thriving community of students and researchers from across the globe. We look forward to welcoming you in Ghent!

Internationally oriented, Ghent University is an enterprising university focussed on critical thinking and the potential application of its research to society and the economy.

As a top 100 institute of higher learning and one of Belgium's most prominent universities, Ghent University is a highly reputed centre of learning with global reach.

It prides itself on its international perspective and research-based education, grounded in an environment that promotes curiosity and encourages students to transcend boundaries. Above all, Ghent University strives to be relevant, making a positive impact on the ever-evolving global scene.

FACULTY OF LAW AND CRIMINOLOGY

HEART

A top-level school for law and criminological science, we offer a full array of educational, research, and clinical programmes to Belgian and international students alike.

With more than sixty master level courses taught in English, five English language international LLM programmes, a broad selection of moot courts, research master's programmes, and a host of foreign exchange students, we are a significant hub of diversity.

Our values are intellectual inquiry, cultural open-mindedness, and research excellence. Our mission is 'to form competent, independent, critical and versatile students who dare to communicate, who demonstrate societal commitment and who have respect for diversity.'

We embrace the societal and economic importance of education and research. Many of our alumni have become leaders in business, politics, public service, the arts, and in the various legal and criminological professions, both here in Belgium and at an international level.

NATIONALITIES
AMONG OUR RESEARCH STAFF

Academic teaching and research at Ghent covers every field of law and the criminological sciences. For each discipline, domestic, European and international issues are covered by our expertise.

We have been one of the foremost law schools in Belgium and Europe for over 200 years. Our educational programme in criminology is one of Europe's largest and is characterized by its multidisciplinary approach.

A wide selection of English language courses, in com-ination with several LLM degrees, specialised centres and excellent research facilities, make us an ideal home for international students, exchange students, visiting researchers, and guest professors alike.

The tremendous variety of courses and degrees allow students to tailor their experience to their needs and interests, either as part of their basic degree or in a specialised advanced master. LLM degrees also allow students to focus on research and writing, often in connection with potential PhD work.

International students intermingle with domestic and exchange students, creating a truly multinational atmosphere. Admission for exchange and international students is selective, ensuring a quality student body.

BIOTOPE

BEYOND KNOWLEDGE

We believe in applied education that, while ensuring profound theoretical knowledge, also delivers high-potential professionals who are ready for 'the real world'.

Students are offered the chance to participate in several moot court programmes and clinics. Internships and job fairs provide opportunities to learn from practice. Skills in research, writing and presenting are honed throughout.

LLM students are prepped for an international career path through a comprehensive 'skills for lawyers' programme, including contract drafting, arbitration and negotiation, and sessions with practicing professionals.

SKILLS

Our school is a forum for intellectual debate, combining cutting-edge expertise with attention to developments in society.

TRADITION

... AND MODERNITY

Our campus offers all the trappings and infrastructure of a traditional academic home for the legal and criminological professions, within the broader context of a large and historical university.

Our library is top-notch and holds, inter alia, one of the biggest collections of European Union law in the world.

The student experience @Ghent is fully 21st century, equipped with all the tools of a digital, connected campus.

Educational innovation and experimentation are nurtured, as is seminar-style debate, which helps guarantee a dynamic, personal and interactive student experience.

We pepper the student experience with cross-disciplinary learning, honours programmes, internships, moots, clinics and skills development.

GHENT

Called 'Europe's best kept secret' (Lonely Planet) and rated 'the most authentic historic city in the world' (National Geographic), Ghent is a truly stunning location, only half an hour's train ride away from the EU decision-making bodies in Brussels.

Ghent's history as a rich commercial port and as the second biggest city north of the Alps between the 13th and 15th century has left behind a large and well preserved medieval centre that seduces tourists and students alike.

Throughout its long existence Ghent has always been a commercial gateway and a political capital. Today Ghent is the third largest city in Belgium. It is a vibrant and walkable city that combines the cultural life and amenities of a modern capital with a unique medieval heritage.
